InspireU

A guide for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students

Welcome

Welcome to The University of Queensland's InspireU program and our series of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander tertiary experience camps.

We will help you along the first steps of a journey towards achieving your goals and aspirations, through a world-class university education.

We are committed to providing opportunities for you to become a game-changer and future leader, ready to join our strong and growing network of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander alumni who are doing extraordinary work in our communities and around the globe.

You will have access to outstanding and inspiring teachers and research leaders who are pioneering positive change.

At UQ, we acknowledge and respect Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples as First Australians. We value and celebrate the uniqueness of knowledges, cultures, histories and languages that have been created and shared for at least 65,000 years.

We emphasise the importance of 'connectedness' to culture and community.

You will study among some of the best and brightest Indigenous students in the country, and have fun being immersed in a positive, enriching environment.

We are doing transformational work, in partnership with Indigenous communities and our growing community of donors, to build a better and brighter future for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

At UQ, we will empower you with the skills and confidence to excel, no matter where life takes you. Come and explore your full potential at UQ.

Professor Bronwyn Fredericks

Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Indigenous Engagement)

"I did a Junior STEM InspireU Camp in 2022, and the experience was really worthwhile. I met so many aspiring people and heard their journeys about how they came to study at UQ and what their goals are, and they are all so different. It's important to learn that there isn't just one way to get to uni or find success, there are many opportunities to get there and achieve your goals."

Jazmin Grant

"I did an InspireU Engineering Camp while I was in high school and fell in love with the St Lucia campus and the staff at the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies Unit."

"I'm from rural NSW, so UQ's atmosphere and the people and vibrancy just blew me away. I knew I had to study here."

"I'm staying on campus at the Women's College: it's so convenient being on campus and close to everything, and beautiful being by the lakes."

UQ strives to ensure that all students feel part of a positive and affirming learning environment. The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies Unit assists and supports prospective and current students from pre-enrolment through to graduation. Indigenous students at UQ can access:

- world-class learning facilities, including spaces specifically for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students
- a fun and engaging program of social and cultural activities
- professional development, work experience and career opportunities
- learning support and tutoring
- access to financial opportunities
- a range of accommodation options
- student services tailored specifically to your needs.

About InspireU

InspireU Tertiary Experience Camps are designed for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander high school students to experience what it's like to be a UQ student.

InspireU Camps are held over five consecutive days, with participants staying at a campus college and taking part in university and cultural activities.

While on camp, InspireU students can:

- experience the vibrant student life on campus
- find out more about study areas of interest and hear from expert staff and industry partners
- learn about the success and support services available to our students
- participate in fun and interactive workshops

- connect with current Indigenous UQ students and learn about their university experiences.

All reasonable costs associated with camp participation – accommodation, meals, program activities, plus transportation to and from UQ's St Lucia campus – will be covered by UQ.

The InspireU Program is designed to engage and inspire young Indigenous high school students to further their studies at university and broaden their career possibilities.

The program aims to break down the barriers preventing students from pursuing higher education.

UQ empowers students to strive for excellence, and to achieve their goals through a world-class university education.

Participants also learn what it means to attend university, and how to navigate subject selection for senior school and university application processes.

UQ offers InspireU camps during school holiday periods (January, June/July and September), covering disciplines ranging from business, economics and law to engineering and health sciences.

“Something I’ve enjoyed the most about studying at UQ is the wide range of facilities – I have access to the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies Unit, and also all the incredible libraries and other study spaces available.

“I have also really valued the teaching staff I have met. In particular, the Indigenous professors have been incredible role models for me as an Indigenous woman.

“UQ helped set up an internship for me which was really valuable because it helped me realise exactly what I want to do with my degree and what roles I want to strive for. This also helped me tailor my courses toward these goals for the future.”

How do I apply?

To be eligible to participate in the InspireU camps, applicants must:

- be of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander descent
- be enrolled in high school at the time of application
- be enrolled in ATAR subjects and eligible for an ATAR score
- have a school attendance rate of 90 per cent or greater.

There is no restriction on the number of applicants from a particular school.

Applications must include:

- completed and signed Application Form (including signed consent of one of your parents or guardians).
- completed and signed Application Guidelines
- written reference from your relevant referee such as a community elder, school principal, guidance counsellor, sports coach etc (not a parent).

- FULL school reports from Year 7 to current year.

Students will be selected from a competitive process and will be assessed on their academic standing in addition to their attendance and behaviour.

We look forward to welcoming you to our campus.
